Mega Democrat donor and Hillary Clinton pal Ed Buck was convicted Tuesday in connection with meth overdoses of two black men at his West Hollywood apartment.

Ed Buck loves to inject young black gay escorts with methamphetamine — the mother of one of Ed Buck’s victims described it as a fetish.

He was finally arrested in 2019 after two black gay escorts died in his apartment from overdoses.

Buck was convicted and found guilty on all 9 felony counts, including two counts of distribution of controlled substances resulting in death.

The verdict came on the first day of jury deliberations in the case, in which Buck was charged with nine felony counts, including two counts of distribution of controlled substances resulting in death. The charges stemmed from the deaths of Gemmel Moore in July 2017 and Timothy Dean in January 2019 at Buck's West Hollywood apartment.

Buck, who has reportedly given more than $500,000 to mostly Democratic politicians and causes since 2000, was found guilty on all counts.

Family members of the men who died spoke after the verdict was announced early Tuesday afternoon. LaTisha Nixon, the mother of Gemmel Moore, was among those who spoke.

Tuesday marked four years to the day of her son's death.

"Thank you to everybody who believed us," Nixon said. "This is my baby, my son, a human being. He's loved by a lot of people.

"We got victory today. So, I'm grateful, and I'm happy."

Each of the two charges carry 20-year mandatory minimums. Details about a sentencing date were not immediately available.
